SOLONS WHO MAKE LAWS

Senators H. P. Baldwin and White are going to Maui today, and Senator Russel's dispensary bill will not be Russel's dispensary bill will not be heard at until Tuesday next. "Colonel Mazuma" has gone into the mountains to avoid furnishing the Advertiser food for cartoons, and very tame sessions in the Senate can be looked forward to until the "Colonel" and the two fighting Senators reappear.

The session yesterday was marked with dignity and lack of spice. Senator White didn't turn up during the afternoon, and Senator John Brown, of Hilo, looked drowsy, and said nothing. Senator Russel was a bit distraught, not having heard from St. Petersburg, Neva street 1712, second floor, but things, nevertheless, were moving pleasantly.

The military committee did itself proud, by encouraging local industries.

proud, by encouraging local industries, and reported favorably on Senator Achi's bill providing for the exemption from taxation of men having five children, or more, living.

The sportsmen had an inning, and the exhibition at Buffalo was patronized by Senator Carter, who had been pleasantly amazed by seeing the skill with which Hawatian children, boys, and girls, could use the tools given to them. It was very touching.

The work done by the Senate was as follows:

Senator Carter, with many blushes, being youthful yet, presented the following report for the Military Committee, to whom was referred Senate bill 64, relating to taxes:

This bill exempts from poll, road and school tax all who have five or more living children, and will therefore be of assistance to the poor. It will, to a certain limited extent, encourage large families, and there can be no objection to the bill. Your committee therefore recommends the passage of the bill.

This report was laid on the table to be considered with the other two Senate bills bearing on the same subject. Mr. Carter then reported as follows for the minority of the judiciary committee on Senate Bill 58, which regulates the method of foreclosing chattel mortants. the method of foreclosing chattel mort-gages with their priority and limita-

The minority of your committee b lives that all questions of credit and security are delicate matters, and should be treated with great care. In this bill, section I makes the own-

In this bill, section I makes the owner of a chattel mortgage prove by extraneous evidence that it is legal, not withstanding its execution and delivery. The general presumption of law is, that a document executed under seal is legal, and the onus to prove otherwise, is on the person alleging fraud or illegality.

Section 2 presumes that the county law is in existence, or will be passed, which, if it should fail through any cause, will render this section useless. Section 3 makes a chattel mortgage good for two years, and yet it may be extended for another year by its provision of a thirty days' notice. Should this time inadvertently expire, would not the mortgage be valueless and the morey lost?

The balance of the Act provides the procedure on foreclosure, and your committee believes that the Act, if committee believes that the Act, if passed, would destroy the little value that is already generally felt to exist on such kinds of security, and thus well a hardship upon the poorer classes, who usually possess only chattels to offer as security for the small sums that are sometimes absolutely necessary for them to borrow.

Captain Atkinson wrote some time ago to a firm of boatbuilders in Cambridge, Mass., asking if a four-oared shell to carry a coxswain, and adapted to carrying a crew averaging 165 pounds each, could be built in time to be shipped from San Francisco not later than June 5th. A telegram has been received answering the question in the affirmative, and the firm has been instructed. to go ahead with the work. The new boat is expected to arrive here by the middle of June. The following notices were posted yesterday on the bulletin board of the Healani boathouse:

J. A. Morgan, the blacksmith, is said to have purchased Wayboy, recently owned by the Club Stables. The price is reported to have been $250. Wayboy is a likely horse, weil bred, and with plenty of speed. He is comparatively a green pacer, but has been clocked to go a mile in fittle worse than $250. The purchase is believed to have been made on behalf of C. H. Judd, who is training Wayboy.
